Ready for a Nordic data-driven adventure with a touch of sustainable magic? If you have a passion for data, technology, and a proven track record in driving product success, we can't wait to hear from you!

?? We're on the lookout for a brilliant and enthusiastic Product Analyst to join our Insight & Analytics team in the ReCommerce vertical. We're on a mission to make the sustainable choice the obvious choice - but it's not always obvious which products we should build to make that happen, so we could use your help. ReCommerce is the first vertical tasked with moving from four different brands and app/web experiences to a common platform, so we have a lot of ground to cover as we build a new experience for our users visiting us more than 100 million times per month.

Our team consists of people in all four hubs with diverse sets of skills and backgrounds. We support the product teams sometimes in an embedded setting with the product team and some that have Schibsted Nordic Marketplaces is home to beloved brands like FINN in Norway, Blocket in Sweden, Oikotie and Tori in Finland, and Den Blå Avis and Bilbasen in Denmark. Together, we're on a quest to become the Next Generation Marketplace. To achieve this ambitious goal, we're building a marketplace platform that will propel our verticals (Jobs, Mobility, Real Estate, ReCommerce) to a leading position in all countries. ??

?? You can apply to work at one of our hubs in Oslo, Århus, Stockholm, and Helsinki. Most of us work some days from a home near those cities and love meeting our colleagues for great lunches and barista-made coffee now and then

As a Product Analyst, you'll play a pivotal role in driving the success of our product and development teams. You can expect to help the teams discover problems to be solved, come up with ways to measure learning and progress and finally demonstrate that this product scales across all our brands. ??

In this dynamic role, you'll collaborate with a diverse team of Nordic data wizards and analysts - and of course product managers, UX'ers and developers. Our function is fresh and exciting, covering a vast array of areas, and we're pretty sure you'll be:

?? Empowering teams to work effectively and autonomously with data and insights by scaling our Learning Loop method and supporting product leadership with ad-hoc and strategic deliverables

?? Collecting, analyzing, and interpreting large data sets using visualization and reporting tools like Tableau and Amplitude

?? Tracking and reporting key performance metrics via data warehouses on Snowflake and RedShift without using ChatGPT to write your SQL.

?? Supporting the teams in defining tracking, tagging plans, data definitions, analytical models, etc., to build outstanding data products

?? Identifying, analyzing, and communicating insights to develop business growth in our and help build commercial products

?? Conduct experiments of all flavours to help make our user journeys smooth and engaging.

?? Being the heart of the greater insight community, keeping us connected and inspired through events, channels, and whatever else it takes

?? Taking care of our insights tribe and learning them your super tricks

?? Strong analytical skills and experience with data visualization and reporting tools like Tableau, Amplitude, and Google Analytics, and collaborating with data warehousing teams

?? Knowledge of and experience in using SQL to build data sets for analytical purposes

?? Experience working with product teams in a technology or software company

??? Excellent communication and presentation skills

?? Strong problem-solving abilities

Ready to embark on this thrilling journey? Apply below! ?? We're eager to read your application and get back to you.
